

"Just Like That"
Five Songs Improvised By Something Like That

What was it?
I think it was something like five guys sitting together, some time in the middle of August, wanting to jam. There was a guitar or two, some drums, a bass, a bass-clarinnet, and a handful of other noisemakers. As you would expect, they were all waiting to be used to make noise.
And this continued for over a month, each weekend giving rise to a slightly altered assemblage of individuals and instrumentation. We had the hand-drums, the keyboards, the metal pipes, toy accordions, pianos, balloons, santouris...
Whatever we could get our hands on, we would use. No objective other than to have fun on the weekend making music. Sound quality was not the greatest of our concerns.
These CDs are the documentations of those days of fun and music. And you could certainly call our songs music...
Or something like that...

This final recording of Something Like That was made on September 20th, 1998 by Ananda, Joe, Carl, Dan, Joe, & Kent.

Cut along flaps, fold under and glue together to make CD envelope.